Code Numbers of Common Battery Telephones

KELLOGG INDUCTION COIL TYPE

These instruments are unequalled for local work and are especially efficient for long distance. A scientifically designed circuit combined with the famous Kellogg transmitter makes them superior in talking quality to any other common battery instruments on the market.

All telephones on this page furnished with Kellogg Bakelite shell receivers.

Magneto Telephones

Magneto telephones are convertible into common battery sets, retardation coil type, by dispensing with dry batteries and installing a condenser in place of the generator. This feature does not detract from the simplicity and efficiency of the set for magneto work. All sets coded hereon are of dark quarter-sawed oak, and are fitted with lightning arresters. These codes include Bakelite mouthpiece and receiver, black gongs are standard.
